

Reopening of Service Probe Almost Certain

Washington, Oct. 28 — (AP) — The House of Representatives today made it almost certain that Congress will reopen its investigation of differences among the armed forces.

Members of the House armed services committee made this plain today in commenting on President Truman's ouster of Denfeld yesterday. Most of the House members were highly critical.

Denfeld was marked as the first victim of the "unification" row after his testimony before the committee last week. At that time he charged a "landlocked" high command with stripping the navy of its sea and air power to the detriment of national security.

Speaking of Mr. Truman's action, Rep. A. J. Clegg (R-Ill.) declared: "It is imperative our committee meet this issue right now."

At his home in Georgia, Chairman Wilson (D-Ga.) refused to comment.

Other committee members said they expected the investigation to be reopened at the next session.

"We'll have to do something about it when we come back in January," said Rep. Short (R-Mo.).

Most members of the House group charged there had been a breach of faith after promises to the committee that there would be no reprisals against naval officers who offered their frank opinions on unification.

Rep. Anderson (R-Calif.) said we are approaching a police state when capable and qualified officers cannot publicly speak their minds.

Short said today that the ouster action will make it "increasingly difficult for Congress to get free, full and frank discussions from members of the armed services for the next session."

"It looks," he added, "as if they are going to develop a military hierarchy — a dictatorship, or what you will — and Congress isn't being let in on the picture."

Truman Puts on Campaign Armor

By JAC KBELL

Washington, Oct. 28 — (AP) — President Truman has his embarrassment-proof armor all ready for the slings and arrows of the 1950 political campaign.

However, he has left up in the air the question whether he will lend help to the efforts to re-nominate Irving, Democrat, to win re-election and re-election in Mr. Truman's home congressional district in Missouri.

Mr. Truman told his news conference yesterday he will cross that bridge when he comes to it. That would be sometime next spring, before the Missouri primary.

Irving, who won his seat in the fourth Missouri district last year with Mr. Truman's blessing, has recently been an embarrassing trouble for the president.

He fired an office employee after the local papers had printed stories about his having locked his staff out of his capitol office.

August a Kansas City Circuit court judge dismissed a suit brought against Irving for an accounting of funds of the AFL Hod Carriers union. A later meeting of the local addressed by Irving broke up in a fight. Irving is president and business manager of the local union in Kansas City.

A reporter told Mr. Truman that Irving had blamed part of his troubles on efforts of Irving's enemies to embarrass the President.

Mr. Truman replied that he is embarrassed. Everybody in the world has tried to embarrass him and they can't do it, the President added.

Another reporter wondered if the President wasn't embarrassed by the story put out by an unidentified member of the House would intervene in the coal and steel strikes if they weren't settled before the week was out.

He wasn't embarrassed by that, the President said. He added that Charles Ross, presidential press secretary, had taken care of that matter to his satisfaction. Earlier

Seek Opportunity Rather Than Security Eisenhower Advises Columbia Students

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, in his capacity as president of Columbia University, has urged his big army of students to seek opportunity rather than security.

"The best example of perfect security," he said, "is a man serving a life term in a federal prison."

General Ike was speaking for a lot of us when he said that. Of course everybody wants reasonable security. But what terrifies the average citizen of any country which encourages private initiative is the thought of a regimented security which puts everybody else — a security which he can't escape because it's just too darned good.

One encounters this thought in many quarters these days. It is a changing world, and it is an interesting example of it down in the subterranean labyrinth of passages and stores beneath New York's Rockefeller Plaza in which the AP headquarters building stands. Among the shopkeepers of the underground city is Joseph Sezzzi, a friendly Italian-American of 72 who runs two shoe-shining and quick repair establishments — apparently on a very profitable basis, too.

He found him turning over a newspaper headline.

"Why is it," he exploded, "that there are people, many of them from foreign lands, who are out to opportunity into a totalitarian state? Heaven itself couldn't provide greater opportunities than this wonderful America! They should have had my experience!"

"Tell me about it," I replied, and leaned on the counter beside him.

"I was thirteen years old when I landed in New York in 1890 as an orphan from a town near Naples," said Sezzzi. "I was alone, but my family remained in Italy, but I had $5 in my pocket and friends in New York. It was a great adventure."

"For a while I shined shoes and made $2 a day. Then I went into a foundry as a molder's helper for $3 a week, and finally earned $6 or $7 a week. Of course living was cheaper in those days, and I could get board and room for $8 a month. In seven years I saved $400 and lost it in a bank crash. But I had faith. I said: 'Here a man can rise. He has opportunities.' So I carried on, and when I was 21 I became naturalized. America was my country."

"Among the various jobs I had in the day Ross had described the cabinet member-inspired story as 'entirely without warrant.'" was that of elevator man at the old hotel Manhattan. There I formed a speaking acquaintance with many famous men — Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, William McKinley, John D. Rockefeller, Sr. That's the sort of thing that can happen in America.

"Well, things moved along all right with me. I got married and there were five children. We returned to Italy for a bit to be with my people, and there I experienced the evils of the Mussolini dictatorship. We were glad to get back to free America. In 1929 I established these two shoe-shining shops — and we have done all right."

"If immigrants told their children of their experiences and what America offers, there wouldn't be so many subversive elements at work. Here we have freedom and opportunity. Freedom is the ability to develop as one wants. There is no regimentation."

"Thank God for America."

Fate Spares Pilot's Life, 6 Others Die

London, Oct. 28 — (AP) — An American flier told today how he escaped death in a plane crash that killed the six others aboard.

The amphibian plane, owned by Superior Oil Co., of Los Angeles, crashed and roared into flames at London airport early today after a takeoff in fog.

The sole survivor, co-pilot Earl Oscar Sivage, 33, of Los Angeles, California, was burned over large areas of his face and legs.

"I do not know what happened," he said from his hospital bed, "when we crashed the cockpit was split open and I was thrown clear."

Dead in the blazing wreckage which eerily lit the murky airport were:

Robert Allen, about 45, vice president of Superior Oil company, Los Angeles.

James Lewis, 40, member of the law firm of Caplan, Livingstone and Lewis, Los Angeles.

Sir Hugh Weightman, 50, and British officials of the Central Mining Investment Trust of London.

Pilot Joseph Jordan, Los Angeles.

Radio Officer Andrew Cole, Long Beach, Calif.

His head and face heavily bandaged, Sivage told reporters:

"My pants were burnt off and I am anxious to get in touch with an official of my company because I haven't any clothes."

He saved his life by rolling in rain puddles to douse the fire in his clothes.

Trolley La-La Not Soothing to Some

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

Washington, Oct. 27 — (AP) — Does a street car company have a right to turn its vehicles into rolling juke boxes?

Does a mellow wait or a bit of bebop soothe and relax the harried traveler?

Or does it bring out the beast in him?

The public utilities commission of the District of Columbia aims to get some answers to these and kindred questions today (10 a. m. EST) at a public hearing on the Capital Transit company's recent trial installation of short wave radio receivers on some of its street cars and buses.

The straphangers' consoles have been in operation several months on some routes. An FM station broadcasts a selected program to them — weather reports, news summaries, a snatch of a tune.

Also commercials.

The radio station pays the transit company for the privilege of serenading its passengers. The passengers select it by captive audience for the program sponsors.

Public reception of the new attraction has been sharply divided. Fine and dandy, say the music lovers. Off the work they go with a Johnny-on-the-spot and a plug for liver medicine ringing in their ears.

Readers, dreamers, philosophers and other people on the ragged edge of being driven nuts by modern civilization call it a dark plot against sanity.

They said so in the letters-to-the-editor columns of Washington newspapers, intensely and repeatedly.

The pro-music bloc struck back with an obligato and a couple of fugues. Some tone-deaf fuddy-duddies are trying to set rapid transit back to the horse-car days, they fumed.

The public utility commission decided the matter warranted a hearing. That was after a man wrote the regulatory body that he sure was glad to be back in New York and away from the "din and clatter" of Washington street cars.

The anti-bus formed an organization called the Transit Riders' association. One of the charter members, Miss Eunice Graham, summed up her ideas of the radio program.

"They tell you the weather when you've left your umbrella at home; they tell you the time when you're already late for work; and they tell you the news, and it's all bad."

One woman at the organizational meeting believes in a direct action. She said she'd found where the master switch on the cars is located, and just reaches down and turns off the multiple speakers.

"Done it two dozen times and nobody seems to object," she reported.

Smith to Retire

Little Rock, Oct. 28 — (AP) — Clay E. Smith will retire next Monday as state director of the federal housing administration.

Smith took over as state director last February. He has been with FHA for 15 years.

He said he would enter private business. No successor has been named.

A LOAD OFF HER CHEST—After searching frantically for two hours for her five-year-old son, Ronald, Mrs. Melvin Murray of Fond, Mo., found him sleeping blissfully in a dresser drawer with his little gray kitten. Ronnie explained that he put the kitten to "bed" in the drawer the night before, awoke in the morning and climbed in with it, pulling the drawer almost shut.

Gotta Smoke, Smoke That Cigarette

Los Angeles, Oct. 28 — (AP) — Mrs. Cecile Pines' marriage went up, one might say, in nonsmoke.

So the first thing she did on obtaining a divorce yesterday was to light a cigarette and take what she called her first carefree puff since March 9, 1948.

That's when she and Arthur Pines, 36, were wed in Las Vegas, Nev. After that, she testified, he "immediately forbade me to smoke freely and put me on a cigarette ration of six a day; if I smoked one more than my ration he would twist my arm until I dropped it."

It was all part of Mr. Pines' plan to make her the perfect wife, she said. She didn't want to be perfect. She got the divorce.

Two Youths Face Charges for Tying Up Deputy

Fayetteville, Oct. 28 — (UP) — Washington County Sheriff Bruce Crider said charges may be filed today against two teen-age boys who alleged tied a deputy sheriff near Woolsey.

Red Cross Parley

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 28 — (UP) — Gen. George C. Marshall arrives here tonight to confer with local Red Cross officials while on a nationwide tour.

The former chief of staff, newly elected president of the American Red Cross, will be met by a delegation headed by Chairman Walter Chandler of the Memphis-Shelby county chapter. He will stay here through tomorrow morning.

Gary Crosby, eldest son of Bing's cross-country tears, has gone through the last three seasons unbeaten in dual meets.

with ropes while holding him at the point of a shotgun.

The boys, who were arrested along with two girl companions Tuesday near Woolsey, are Phillip Bearden, 19, of Winslow, and Charles Peeryhouse, 18, of Tulsa, Okla.

Crider did not say what the charges would be.

Meanwhile, the girls, both from Chicago, have been released in the custody of their parents. They are Patricia Chadwick and Frances Riley, both 15.

Deputy Sheriff Louis Downing said he was jumped by the two boys when he went to a mountain cabin near Winslow to investigate a complaint by the owner of the cabin. The quartet was captured the next day in an abandoned barn near Woolsey.

Ex-Secretary Says Wood Indian Giver

Miami, Fla., Oct. 28 — (UP) — A pretty brunette, former secretary of sportsman Gar Wood, said today that the millionaire speedboat king gave her money and an expensive house to try to lull her to divorce her husband and come live with him.

Mrs. Violet V. Bellous, 30, made the charges in a reply to Wood's circuit court suit here in which he seeks recovery of $25,000 in bonds and cash and a $100,000 home.

Mrs. Bellous said in her answer that the elderly Wood once told her that she "would be like a queen because I am a king" if she would live with him.

Wood, who is 66, said in his suit that he entrusted Mrs. Bellous with the cash and bonds and decided the elderly Wood once told her that she "would be like a queen because I am a king" if she would live with him.

In her answer, filed in court here yesterday, Mrs. Bellous asked dismissal of the recovery suit and charged that Wood was an "Indian giver."

Wood began making advances in December, 1947, Mrs. Bellous said, and agreed to pay for the divorce which she obtained from C. M. Bellous, Sr., in Las Vegas, Nev., in June, 1948.

During her stay in Las Vegas, the former secretary said, Wood visited her there for 10 days after growing a moustache to hide his identity.

Later Mrs. Bellous said she became reconciled with her husband. But she said, Wood threatened to "horror" her with the details of their past relationship "if she did not agree to live with him."

She said she met Wood on several occasions during her separation.

Favors Exploring Possibilities of Navigation

Little Rock, Oct. 28 — (AP) — Brig. Gen. P. A. Feringa thinks the lower Arkansas river could be made navigable before upstream improvements are completed.

Gen. Feringa, chief of the lower Mississippi river division of the U. S. engineers, expressed that opinion after receiving a report on progress of preliminary planning on the $1,000,000 Arkansas river valley development program here yesterday.

Earlier studies had indicated that construction of high flood and sediment control dams up river should precede construction of a navigation channel downstream from Little Rock.

The general said however that it was merely his opinion that the navigation work could be done before or at the same time as the upper river work. He added that the Arkansas river board has not reached that conclusion and that he is not convinced it should be done.

Gen. Feringa and Col. B. C. Fowkes, Vicksburg district engineer, went to Stuttgart today to confer with water control interests there. Col. Louis W. Proffiss, Dallas head of the Southwest division, U. S. engineers, and Col. Thomas A. Lane, Little Rock district engineer, left on a boat inspection trip of the Arkansas river from Little Rock to Pine Bluff.

Your All-American Choice

My choice was the Army. Why? Simple. Because the Army has plenty on the ball. Top flight training, wide-open chances for fast promotion, world travel and security. I like the Army. It's the all-American line of an all-American team.

I chose the Air Force. I want to be ready for a part in the air. There's no better place to do that than with the greatest air force in the world. In the Air Force, we not only learn, we help write the book. We're the first string backfield on the all-American team. You, too, have a choice between the two finest careers in America. Army or Air Force, you can't lose whichever you choose.

Race Doesn't Figure Says Morley

Little Rock, Oct. 28 — (AP) — Arkansas Revenue Commissioner Dean Morley says race didn't figure in his refusal to renew the beer permit of Pine Bluff cafe.

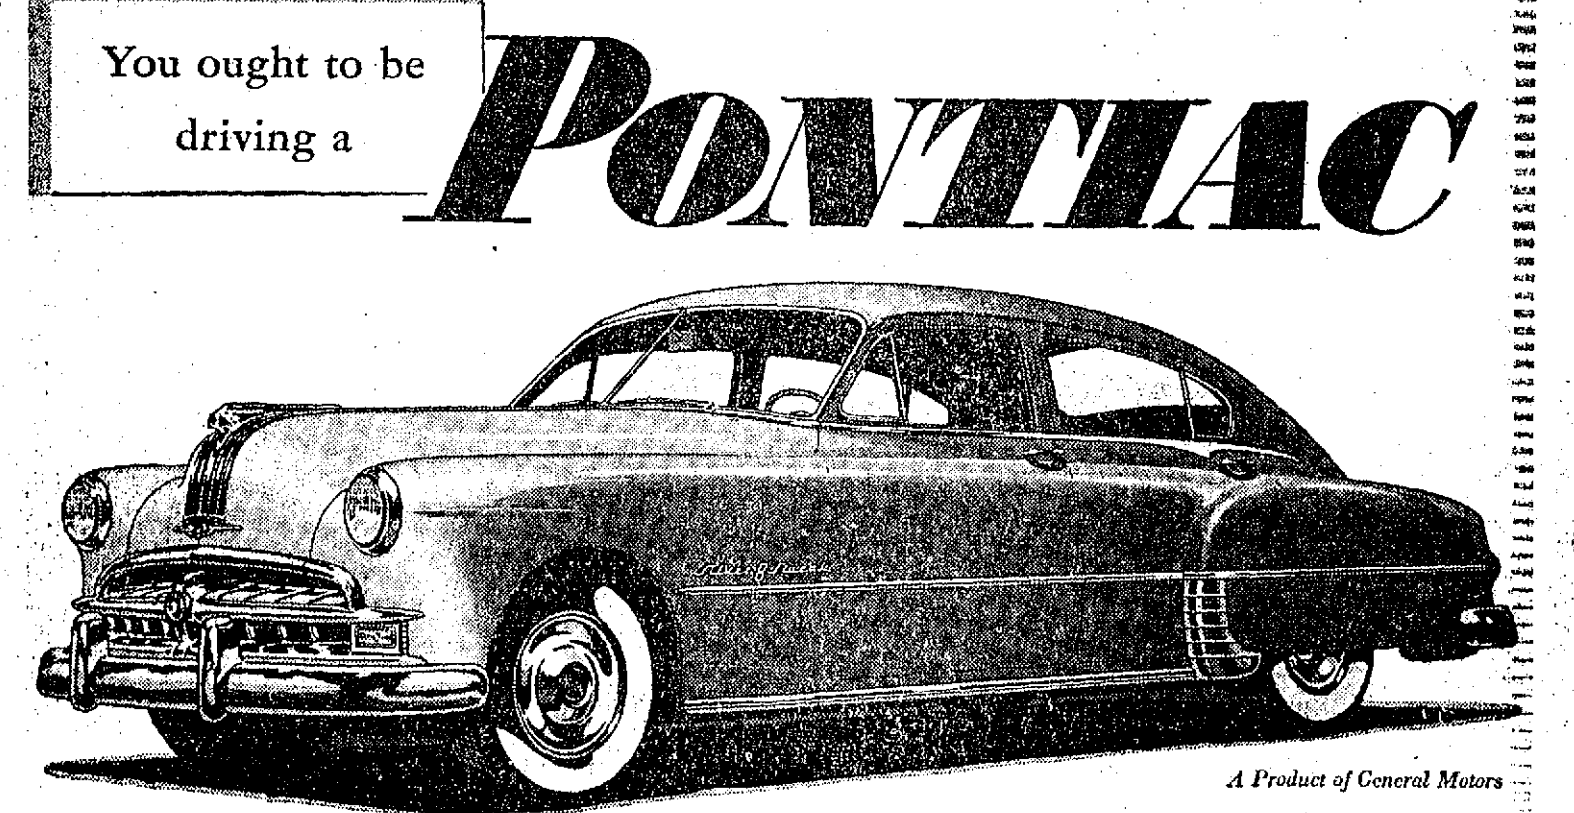

W. Harold Flowers, Pine Bluff Negro attorney, sought to show in federal court that Morley last July didn't renew the permit of the Castle Drive-In because Negroes, as well as whites, were served there. This Morley denied.

Flowers' clients, who are white, seek to compel Morley to reinstate the permit. They are Mary Ella Case, the proprietor, and her husband, Virgil.

Morley said that among other factors which caused him not to renew the permit was the fact that the Case 12-year-old son was allowed to serve beer.

Lewis, Hope, had charge of registration which began at 11 a. m. at the noon luncheon, Mrs. Joe Reese, president of Hope Unit introduced Mrs. S. E. Amonette, Horatio, district president, who made timely remarks on membership and then introduced Mrs. Robert Powell, Texarkana, 2nd V. P. of the Western Division. Mrs. Powell gave a resume of the ways and wherefores of the auxiliary. She mentioned, first: the five million dollars spent on 720,108 children, but stressed the fact that it was the war in personal service given which amounts to so much more than dollars or numbers.

Second: being ever mindful of the disabled veterans, the Auxiliary furnished 6,000 trained workers for occupational therapy in the different veteran hospitals.

Third: furnished Christmas Gift Shops in the hospitals for the convenience and pleasure of disabled veterans who are unable to do their own shopping for their families. She stressed the need of practical items as well as toys for children and especially the need of baby clothes for these gift shops which now total 136.

Fourth: the Memorial Poppies the auxiliary bought twenty seven million poppies from the veterans and offered them for sale to the public this fall and spring. Money thus received is used for child welfare and rehabilitation for veterans.

Fifth: Americanism — by giving awards for best essays and posters, working in co-operation with teachers and schools.

Sixth: the unique program of sponsoring girls for all girls State held in Little Rock every summer that they have now acquired the Old Gus Blass home in Little Rock for headquarters of the Arkansas Department of the Auxiliary.

Someone to Love

By IRENE LONNEN ERNHART Copyright, 1949, NEA SERVICE, INC.

A hospital attendant motioned more. But it won't. You and I to see Ma, and her eyes opened as he reached the bed. She smiled faintly. He felt panicky alone. He wanted to do something for her, but he didn't know what he could do. It was a terrible feeling, being so alone, and so ineffectual.

"Tod," She stopped between words, like a spent runner. He leaned closer, to hear what she said. "You ought to make up with Jenny."

"Hush, Ma, don't try to talk. I'll do that."

Her eyes flutter shut. They let him slip there by her head. The nurse brought a chair for him, and then they put up the usual screens.

After the funeral the days passed monotonously, and he seemed to move in a vacuum, uncaring and unfeeling. He took a room near his work. It was a dismal little place, but it didn't cost him much, and it was all he needed, because he was generally in the tavern at the corner every evening.

Rick looked him up once and found him there. They talked for quite a while about different things, and then Rick said suddenly, "So it's all washed up between you and Liz Conover?"

"Sure. That's old news. You're behind the times," Tod said thickly. "And you've found out you're still in love with Jenny, after all."

Tod's face lightened, and he downed his drink quickly. "What ever gave you that silly idea?"

A few nights later Rick had dinner with Jenny. He spoke of Tod, mentioning that he was drinking pretty heavily.

"That sounds like Tod," Jenny said lightly. He couldn't stand up to anything, she thought bitterly. He was always running away.

"You knew of course, that he and Liz split up?"

"I wondered why he didn't turn to her, when he needed help," Jenny said. "What's the matter, did she change her mind again?"

"No," Rick answered, "Tod discovered that he didn't love her after all. He quit the Conover agency too, in January. I don't think the new job he has amounts to much."

"Darling," Jenny whispered, "I'd much rather talk about us."

Rick reached across the table and put his hand on hers.

"I'll be so glad, Rick," she said, "when you and I are married and we're settled down with the babies."

The line of his jaw tightened and his eyes searched hers. "You think that once you're married you'll be free of him, any more. Isn't that it, Jenny?"

"Nonsense!" She tried to laugh, but it was a failure.

"Jenny, in spite of all Tod's shortcomings, his foolishnesses, you still love him."

No, she whispered then. "No, I don't want to love him, not ever again. I only want to marry you Rick. You're so fine and decent and — kind and generous."

"Quite a list of virtues, darling," Rick said gently.

"I mean it, Rick, when I say I want to marry you, I mean it. If I thought it would work, darling, there isn't anything I want

DOROTHY DIX Spoiled Brat

Dear Dorothy Dix: What to do with a spoiled, good-for-nothing brat? No, I haven't got one, I'm it. I have been petted and spoiled until I am of no use whatever. I am selfish, lazy, impudent. I had two years at one of the best schools in the State, but I did nothing with my chance. I am not fitted to earn my own living and I can't cook or sew. I get up at noon every day and sit by the fire until bedtime. I am utterly miserable and make every one miserable around me. I am afraid to marry because I know I would ruin any man's life. When I tell my mother and father that they should have disciplined me, they say I am crazy, it is no one's fault but my own. They have no use for me. What to do?

Answer: A girl as intelligent as you are should see the answer to that question herself. Reform, and the way to reform is simply to face about and cure yourself of your faults. Fortunately for you, you are still young enough to make over your life and to make what you will of it.

You say you are selfish. Well, then why not teach yourself to prefer others to yourself? If you are lazy, don't lie abed in the morning. Get up and go to work. Get you a job, if you can. If you can't, help your mother. If you are impudent, shut your teeth on the lips. Teach yourself to show consideration to your family. Break yourself of the habit of quarreling and fault-finding.

No Greater Crime
You are right in saying that the blame for what you are rests on your parent's head rather than yours. I don't believe that there is a greater crime in the world than spoiling children, for it not only wrecks the life of the child itself, but of all who are brought in intimate contact with it.

Parents seem to think that if they will not discipline their children they will somehow slide through the world doing exactly as they please. Never was there a greater mistake. The discipline that father and mother did not give them life gives them with a heavy hand, and when they have learned their lesson it is too late to do them any good.

Don't let this be your unhappy fate. Save yourself while there is yet time.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Don't you think that wives should co-operate with their husbands to the extent of permitting them to invite their business friends to dinner when they happen to drop in from a neighboring city? Some wives do not seem to realize the importance of this bit of hospitality in the progress a man is able to make in the business world. I know some who dare not invite any of their business friends to a meal because of their wives' objections.

Answer: A wife is certainly a very poor helpmeet to her husband who isn't willing to take the trouble to get up a good dinner for one of her husband's customers, and who doesn't put on her prettiest frock and her sweetest smile and do her best to help sell her husband to the man who may hold his future in his hands.

For these little friendly contacts are of the greatest importance to a man. More sales are made over a dinner table than are over a mahogany-top desk, and it is when a client is soothed and fed and in a melting mood that he is more apt to lend a willing ear to a new proposition.

More than that, employers and businessmen like to size a man up against the background of his home, and nothing creates a more favorable impression than for him to have a nice, well-ordered, well-kept house with a wife at the head of it who shows she is clever and capable and a real asset to her husband.

Dear Miss Dix: Our fathers and mothers do not allow us to go out with boys, but last week-end when they were away we had a wild party. We were drunk and did not know what we were doing. Please, please, tell us what to do. We don't want to tell our mothers.

Answer: Take your courage in both hands, girls, and go at once to your mothers and make a full confession of your folly. It is your only salvation.

Don't go to strangers for help. Don't tell your secret to other girls or to people you may find it easy to confide in. Tell it to your mother.

Go Shopping on His 102nd Birthday

Jonesboro, Oct. 28. — (AP) — William M. Loudermilk, Jonesboro Civil War veteran, was downtown today shopping for his 102nd birthday. He is the oldest survivor of the war between the states will be 109 Thursday.

Definitely no "stay-at-home" Mr. Loudermilk visited a number of friends downtown today. "This weather's too pretty to stay at home," he remarked.

Highlights of his 102nd year were a 1,000 mile trip through Tennessee, North Carolina, and Georgia by bus and train; the death of his local confederate buddy, Alec Tippen, at the age of 102; and the sale of the major part of his chicken flock. Since retiring, Mr. Loudermilk has gardened and kept a large flock of chickens at his home here.

The real celebration of his birthday will be Sunday, when his 85-year-old wife is planning to have a few friends in for a birthday dinner.

Though well beyond his three score and ten years, Mr. Loudermilk, a devout church goer, figures he still has a few more years on earth. "It won't be too long now, but I'm ready any time the Lord sees fit to call me," he declared.

There, no matter how silly or indiscreet or wrong you have been, they will forgive you and help you.

Derrick-Sitter May Have a Long Wait
Texarkana, Tex., Oct. 27 — (UPI)—Rudolph, Texarkana's derrick-sitter squirmed uneasily today as he envisioned Halloween pranksters d'ring him from his downtown perch. The man known only as Rudolph mounted the derrick ten days ago on State Line ave., where Texas and Arkansas meet, and vowed to stay there until the city reached its Community Chest goal of $22,227.18. "I don't have any money and all I can give is myself," he explained. "I made clear today he doesn't want to 'give himself' to boys and girls who have threatened to bring him to earth Monday night during Halloween festivities. Rudolph finally admitted that only "an act of God" will fill the chest quota by Monday. Collections so far total less than $13,000. "Everyone except those kids have been nice to me, though," he shouted down. "I've got a regular home up here with a heater, blankets, a radio, some books and lots of cigars."

Although the schools are only three miles apart, Santa Clara and San Jose State have met but three times on the gridiron.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1949
By King Features Syndicate.

New York, Oct. 26.—In the present crisis in steel and coal there is bitter news for Americans in a new book, the latest of many biographies of John L. Lewis, by Saul Alinsky, of Chicago.

Alinsky claims that Lewis told him of a dramatic interview between himself and the late Frank Murphy, the governor of Michigan, later a justice of the Supreme court, at the climax of the CIO's communist infiltration in the form of sit-down strikes, riots and public terror in 1937. If Alinsky's report is truly presented and Lewis did not lie to give himself the better of the situation, Murphy was a historic coward.

Up to this time there has been some question whether Murphy had the courage to enforce the law and some legal justification for his failure to use force to expel Lewis's criminal mob from the occupied plants in Flint.

The result of his failure was Motors and, later, millions of other American citizens, were delivered into the power of the communists, Marxian socialists, criminal rioters and racketeers of the CIO. The current situation in steel and coal flows out of that default by a platoon governor. There is no other explanation for his failure.

Murphy had called out the national guard to enforce a court order to the sit-down insurrection, generally mislabeled "strikes," to vacate the factories and to arrest those who refused to obey. Alinsky speaks slightly of the sanctity of the rule of law through orders of the courts and it is significant that his blurb declares his fiercest opposition to fascism and particularly to the "fascism" of the CIO. But he says nothing against communism and Stalin. He puts the offices of General Motors in a very unpleasant light, calling it a "Lewis's prejudices and self-serving versions of incidents, and gives Lewis the better of the comparison. But he does admit that the workers employed by General Motors.

In the stilted language of the professional bleeding heart, Mr. Alinsky puts that admission this: "The union well that the union's membership consisted of a minority of G. M.'s working force." Again, Alinsky says the company's "secret election was a 'fake' that the union had only a minority. I detect no condemnation by the author of the entrapment of the majority.

This seems to be first open admission by a partisan of the union that the majority were dragged by the CIO and Lewis. Taking Alinsky at his word, Murphy's cowardly abdication and violation of the oath he swore with the remarkable pietistic political pretense was the crime which inflicted on the United States the continuing rule of the goons and the labor monopoly of a few ruthless men. The steel and coal strikes are a direct consequence of this crime.

The night before the soldiers were to move in to clear the criminals out of the plants, Lewis warned Murphy that this would cause a "blood bath." Alinsky ignores the fact that this would be the price of the criminals themselves in maintaining their challenge to government.

"In Detroit that night, Lewis told the writer, he was awakened by a knock on the door." Alinsky reports, "He opened it to find General Murphy standing there tense and pale."

Murphy told Lewis he had with him an order to arrest Lewis, a state of insurrection, which was, and ordering the soldiers to enforce the court injunction and throw the rioters out.

Alinsky says Lewis told him he read the order. It established recognition in writing by Murphy of his oath-bound duty to enforce the law.

"Lewis wheeled on the governor, thundering 'governor, do you know what this means?' Alinsky writes, 'Murphy, shaken, replied, yes, but there is nothing else I can do.'"

Lewis then indulged in some characteristic hamming and Murphy, in a trembling voice, said he was doing this because it was his sworn duty to uphold the law. Lewis knew he was yellow and was playing for time.

Now Lewis sneered at the law. He reminded Murphy that Murphy's father had been arrested for rioting in an Irish demon-

Contest Is Homecoming for Hope

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to fill Hammons Stadium tonight to see the Trojan tangle with Joe Dilly's Trojans from Hot Springs. Homecoming ceremonies will be held at 7:45 and the kickoff is set for 8 o'clock.

As far as weight is concerned the teams are even — both weighing in at 165 pounds per man. The Trojans line has about a half-pound edge on the Bobcats.

While Hope has only a single loss and a tie to mar its record the Trojans have dropped two of their six games — all to Big Six foes. From Hot Springs comes word that Joe Dilly is moaning the blues because three of his boys are ailing. However, all are expected to see action against the Bobcats.

stration in Canada against the British rule in Ireland as a revolution, the law, Lewis said to Murphy, but Judge Lynch, of Galway, hanged his own son in a classical case of the sanctity of the law in Ireland.

"You want my answer, sir," Lewis then said according to Alinsky. "I give it to you. Tomorrow morning I shall personally enter Chevrolet plant No. 4. I shall order the men to disregard your order. I shall walk to the largest window, dive out of my overcoat, remove my shirt and bare my bosom. Then when you order your troops to fire, mine will be the first target that those bullets will strike."

Then Lewis lowered his voice. "And, as my body falls from that window to the ground, you listen to the voice of your grandfather as he whispers in your ear, the right thing to do."

"Governor Murphy, white and shaking, seized the order from Lewis's hand and tore out of the room. The order was not issued and next day General Motors collapsed and capitulated.

That scene of betrayal which established the CIO's monopoly and recognized crime and terror as legitimate weapons for the labor unionists was one of the most faithful in American history.

It is characteristic of Lewis that he be withheld all this until Murphy was dead. He is not brave himself but a magnificent fourth grader. And yet the story does ring true to the character of both the men.

Little Rock Edges Wildcats of El Dorado

Little Rock, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The Little Rock Tigers shoved aside the most serious threat to repeating as Big Six high school football champions when they defeated El Dorado, 13-7, here last night.

The Tigers are favored to win their two remaining games with Pine Bluff and North Little Rock. They remain undefeated and untied in league play. El Dorado, which finished its loop schedule last night, held a similar position until the meeting with Little Rock.

Fumbles set up all three of last night's touchdowns.

Claassen Picks Grid Winners for Saturday

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Coming back with another series of forecasts, knowing there cannot be another foot of upsets such as hit the football world last weekend.

Last week's score was 57 correct selections and 17 incorrect for a 74 average. That made the season's figures 285 correct, 70 wrong for 80.

Michigan over Illinois: This is the twenty-fifth anniversary of Red Grange's big day at Michigan's expense. Illinois, surprise leader of the Big Ten, will wish Grange was playing again.

Notre Dame over Navy: What do you expect, a miracle? California over UCLA: Pappy Waldorf, California coach, wants to be host in the Rose bowl game.

The Hope Legion Basketball team that gave the Hope fans plenty of entertainment last year on the hardwood floor, getting all set to begin practice next week. The Legionaires had a very successful season last year in winning 23 games out of 30, including 10 victories over the invitational tournament held here. This tournament was held in place of the District Tournament which was to have been held in Texarkana but was postponed because of the best independent teams in this section.

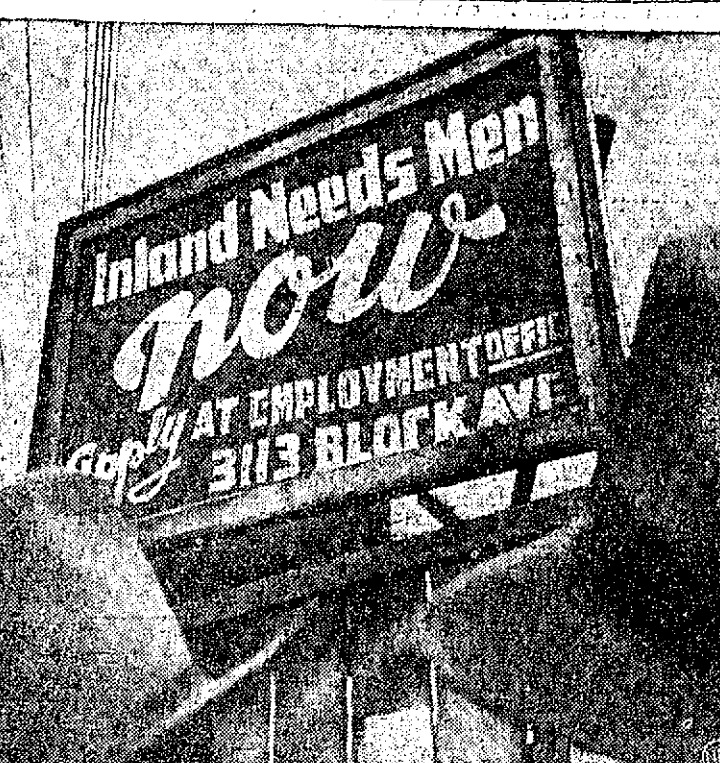

Pony Reeves, well known basketball player of Putnam and the Hope Legion, and Gilson Ross who has played with Hope High school and the Legion, have been named as playing coaches of the 1949 Hope Legion team. Both of these boys had a lot to do with the successful season that the Legionaires had last year and are expected to play a big part in what could be a better team this year. Harry Hawthorne will be business manager for the team. He is chairman of the athletic committee.

Coach Reeves and Ross said that practice would begin next week. Wednesday night, and asked that all players who are interested in participating in Independent Basketball be on hand or the first intentions of coming out are: Pony Reeves, Gilson Ross, Red Vannoy, Hollis Green, Doc Porter, Lee Downs, R. # 'Look For the Silver Lining', Is Story of Marilyn Miller's Life

Musical Film Opens Sunday at Saenger

There was more than a touch of nostalgia in Burbank, Cal., a few months ago when, on the Warner Bros. studio sound stage they were repeating the life and times of Marilyn Miller for "Look For the Silver Lining." The Technicolor picture opens at the Saenger Sunday.

Some years ago it may have been as many as eighteen, the correspondent and others were taken to one of these same sound stages to watch the real Marilyn Miller work in the screen version of her stage success, "Sally."

Both talking pictures and Technicolor were more or less new and experimental at the time. It was summer and the stage where the particularly spectacular scenes the correspondents were to watch were not hot and crowded.

Evening in the picture with the star was Alexander Gray, then enjoying a real vogue in Hollywood, and Joe E. Brown, playing the role originated on the stage by Leon Errol.

Even that visit to the set of "Sally" was a memory rouser for the correspondents who had watched Miss Miller a few years before sing and dance her way through "Sally" on the New York stage.

The set for that picture that recent days also was hot and crowded. The picture was being photographed in Technicolor and included musical numbers from several of Marilyn Miller's best-remembered shows. A great number of people, both cast and crew, had been assembled for director David Butler's use.

Included among them was Edward (Mecca) Graham, who came in Hollywood originally as Miss Miller's business manager when she had been "Sally" and stayed on as assistant director for other pictures since.

Says Secret Atom Talks Will Fail

Lake Success, Oct. 27 —(AP)—The United States and four other powers declared today secret atomic talks have failed because the Russians put national interests above world security.

This report came from the U. S., France, Britain, China and Canada. It was released along with a formal report of closed-door conferences they held with the Soviet Union in seeking to end the East-West deadlock.

The report said that "the government of the U. S. S. R. puts its sovereignty first and is unwilling to accept measures which may impinge or interfere with its rigid exercise of unimpeded state sovereignty."

It added:

"If this fundamental difference could be overcome, other differences, which have hitherto appeared unsurmountable could be seen in true perspective and reasonable ground might be found for their adjustment."

The Russians refused in the closed meetings to talk about disclosures of atomic explosions in the Soviet Union. The United States time and again reaffirmed its position favoring the majority plan for atomic control as approved by the U. N. assembly last Nov. 4 in Paris.

The Soviet Union hinted — after the atomic explosion was announced last month — that the United States ought to have some new proposals but this produced no change.

The net result: The East and West deadlock stands unchanged but the six powers, known as the sponsoring powers because they helped create the U. N. Atomic Energy commission, will continue the talks in November. The statement of the five powers and the U. N. records of the meetings will be taken up by the special political

Rialto Feature Sunday Is Ball Comedy

Every spring, when the birds and bees start watching the guys and girls, "men seem to undergo a peculiar change. It's like spring fever, but it lasts all summer."

The siren call brings them to the ball parks, and the said lots where the thud of a ball against a mitt, the sharp crack of horseshoe meeting ash and the hoarse cries of the umpire combine to make baseball America's favorite national pastime.

Capturing this on celluloid, Twentieth Century-Fox has come up with "It Happens Every Spring," starring Ray Milland, Jean Peters and Paul Douglas, the film, which opens Sunday at the Rialto Theatre, tells the story of a college chemistry teacher, who, through a strange chain of circumstances, is propelled unexpectedly from the classroom to the diamond where he becomes baseball's most famous pitcher.

Outstanding cast:

Cast in this key role is Ray Milland, aided and abetted by Paul Douglas, that "Letter to Three Wives" guy, who enacts the role of the team's wisecracking catcher. Jean Peters, who scored so sensationally in her screen debut opposite Tyrone Power in "Captain from Castile," provides Milland's love interest in the film. Heading the featured cast of the film are Ed Begley, Ted de Corsia, Ray Collins, Jessie Royce Landis, Alan Hale, Jr., and Bill Murphy.

Production credits for "It Happens Every Spring" go to William Perleberg, producer of the film, and Ed Begley, Ted de Corsia, Ray Collins, Jessie Royce Landis, Alan Hale, Jr., and Bill Murphy.

N. L. R. Also Protests Phone Hike

Little Rock, Oct. 27 —(AP)— The city of North Little Rock today cited what it called "strong evidence" that telephone rates "are already too high."

Though Attorney W. E. Phipps, North Little Rock independent in the Southwestern Bell Telephone company's application for a rate increase, and asked the Arkansas public service commission to deny the request.

The intervention said the company's directory shows that long distance rates in Arkansas are higher than the interstate rates. The rates from Little Rock are cheaper to Muskogee, Okla., than to Smith, cheaper to Shreveport, La., than to Mangolia x x x.

"The fact that the interstate commission fixes a rate x x x from North Little Rock to Memphis, Tenn., 15 per cent cheaper than for a similar call to West Memphis, Ark. is strong evidence that x x x rates are already too high," the intervention said.

It also contends that the company admits making a three per cent profit on present rates and that the proposed rates are about 30 per cent higher than current rates and added:

"Applicant should exercise some economies and improve operating efficiency as a means of making a higher profit rather than asking each year for an additional rate increase."

The company last May asked the PSC to grant a rate increase of about $2,000,000 annually in Arkansas. It proposed an increase of about $1,734,000 on business and one-party residential customers and $465,000 on intra-state long distance calls.

The PSC hearing on the application is scheduled Nov. 7.

Britain's Prime Minister Is in the Position of Being Dammed Either Way

By DeWITT MacKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Britain's Socialist Prime Minister Attlee is in the uncomfortable position of the fellow who is damned if he does and damned if he doesn't.

This predicament arises from his daringly drastic experiment of devaluing the pound sterling in an effort to increase British exports and so bring the country out of its economic tail spin. Then, having made this devaluation, he was faced with the necessity of devising ways to prevent inflation from growing out of it to inflict further hardship on an already grievously harassed country.

The formula accepted for this safeguard was to slash the government's budget of $7,240,000,000, which was heavily laden with socialist welfare projects and defense measures. While this cut was being figured out by the experts, the government made the public flesh creep with warnings of how drastic the slash would be and what sacrifices it would involve.

So the whole country was set for a fresh blast of the austerity which ever since the start of the world war has been riding John Bull like the old man of the sea. Then when the time of disclosure arrived in the house of commons Monday the cannon-cracker proved to be something of a squib.

The terrific slash was only an eight per cent cut. This was such an anti-climax that the general public not only was surprised but was worried for fear the government program isn't drastic enough to meet one of the gravest economic crises and nation ever has experienced.

All the major newspapers, excepting the Laborite Daily Herald of London, condemn the proposals as inadequate. Moreover the cuts start in keeping with the measures for which the nation had prepared itself. Rather typical was the comment of the London Daily mail which said in part:

"After months of measured warnings, the nation has been braced, keyed-up for heroic shocks. They have not come. Once again the government have shirked an unpleasant duty and have run away from a grave situation."

Attlee's answer by the press was the heaviest. Attlee was encountered since the socialists came to power some four and a half years ago and began their great experiment in nationalization and welfare government. Well, did the prime minister, astute politician as he usually is, misjudge the temper of his public? Has he been too timid in his demands for further sacrifices?

It will be fairer to let Mr. Attlee answer that himself, as he may do Thursday when he demands a vote of confidence in commons after a debate on his program. Even his harshest critic probably would admit that the prime minister was in a most difficult position.

In the first place he had to ask himself how much more austerity could be endured by a country which had labored with tightened belts for ten harsh years. If he made the burden too heavy what would happen in the general election which must be held by next July? The correct answer to that was perhaps a matter of life and death to Britain's experiment in socialism which he was creating and which he obviously believed was in the interest of the nation.

Of course that argument can cut two ways, for failure to make cuts heavy enough to solve the economic crisis also might have the effect of defeating socialism. It is true, as this column previously has pointed out, that the socialist government inherited the crisis. But while the Attlee government can disclaim responsibility for creating the emergency, the fact remains that it will be held largely responsible for finding a solution. Therefore if the cuts in expenditures aren't sufficient, the blame naturally will be assessed against socialism.

Attlee is expected to win his vote of confidence Thursday because of his big majority in commons. Then he will have until the general election

U. S. Broadcast Gets Juke Box Accent

New York, Oct. 27 —(AP)— The "Voice of America" got a juke box accent six months ago — and they're eating it up in the far away places!

Sometimes the "voice" is Bing Crosby. Sometimes it's Frank Sinatra. And sometimes its heart belongs to daddy.

Because baby, even if it's a cold war outside, you gotta tell 'em how things are in Glocca-Morra.

Which proves that what's good for East St. Louis will work in Surinam — and there are lots of old cowhands along the Rio Danube.

Anyway, the big state department international broadcast is a delectable American popular music as an experiment, and it looks like Disc Jockey Martin Block has hit the international jackpot.

At least his fan mail would drive a stamp collector nuts.

The "voice" backed into the popular field in a big way six months ago, and Block volunteered his services. A weekly half-hour program was beamed to Europe, the Far East, and Latin America. It's called International Make Believe Ballroom.

Block runs his program in strict disc jockey style, with lots of gags and chatter about musicians. But no commercials — this is Uncle Sam's sustaining program.

Before long Block was getting more fan mail than any other "voice" program — and some of the writers were real gone guys and gals.

There was the girl in Assam who wanted "Buttons and Bows" and the young German who asked for the "Two O'Clock Jump."

A Catholic priest from Panama wrote that Bing's voice seems up to par, and Madeline from Antiquique wants some one to write music for her lyrics.

The "voice" doesn't report any letters from behind the iron curtain — where the Russians have been holding some airwave jam sessions of their own.

But Block isn't worried. It'll take more than jamming to comb that man right out of their hair.

Charges Dropped Against Strip Tease Artist

New Orleans, Oct. 26 —(UP)— The state board of alcoholic control today disagreed with an inspector who said stripper Pat Halliday's "enticing" dance was obscene.

The two-man board dropped in on the French quarter night club where the pretty Miss Halliday does her bumps and grinds and watched from a ringside seat—for free.

Afterward they agreed that Miss Halliday's act was "fine." They dropped charges against her.

Fishwheel Not Gold Country Some Say

Anchorage, Alaska, Oct. 27 —(AP)— Several would-be prospectors returned today convinced that Fishwheel, the booming town town on the Yukon flats near the Arctic Circle, is not gold country.

"Amateurs and professionals are pretty well convinced, but they're afraid to leave and fear they'll miss something," Bill Lund, Alaska Airlines pilot, said on his return from Fishwheel.

Lund, with Robert Stevenson, Northern Consolidated Airlines pilot, went to the Yukon area over the weekend and came up with two of the few nuggets he said had been found at the river.

He said the pilots showed the nuggets to a prospector.

"Lord, I wish the news to everyone in sight. They grabbed all their tools and lit out in every direction. Even the old-timers got excited."

Asked about the value of the gold he had found, he shrugged.

"It's worth about 60 cents, I guess. It is surface gold, but I can't imagine where it came from. Everyone is getting colors (small flakes of gold) such as you might find anywhere. But I didn't see any nuggets besides my own and Carroll's."

Clifton Carroll started the stampede when he found nuggets "the size of peas" stuck to the musk on the axle of his fishwheel, after which the boomtown has been named. That was two weeks ago.

Going Blind, Millionaire's Son, Kills Self

London, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The Hon. Peter Beatty, 39-year-old grandson of Marshall Field and son of a famed British admiral, killed himself rather than face the world as a blind man, a coroner's court ruled today.

The handsome young bachelor jumped to his death from the sixth floor of the fashionable Ritz hotel on Wednesday.

He was long his sight.

"He took his own life while the balance of his mind was disturbed by ill health," the court said.

Westminster Coroner H. Neville Stafford said he was convinced that Beatty was a victim of a spectacular career as a race horse owner, considered life empty after several operations to restore his sight only partly succeeded.

He had had many eye operations. The last was on Sept. 5.

"Afterwards," his brother said, "he gradually began to lose what little sight he had." Peter, he added, had never given a hint he planned to take his life.

Beatty's valet, Albert Walters, told the court that he employed the young man on Wednesday in his Ritz suite, put on a dressing gown and said he was going upstairs to visit friends.

Instead, he went to the valet's room, opened a window and for a moment on a ledge then lurched forward. His body crashed into an airway, the fall breaking his back.

Beasley to Confer With Colleges on Cash Funds

Little Rock, Oct. 27 —(AP)— State comptroller Lee Roy Beasley will confer with officials of three Arkansas colleges this week on "effects" of the recent supreme court ruling on cash funds.

The high court has ruled that instructors' salaries can not be supplemented out of the funds.

The "cash funds" are revenue derived from monies not appropriated by the state, such as student fees, college operated concessions, etc.

Beasley said he would talk to officials at Arkansas State Teachers in Conway and Arkansas Tech at Russellville today, and with university heads in Fayetteville tomorrow.

The comptroller said it will be necessary to work out some means for supplemental payment of extension service workers.

Officer Says Navy Misquoted by AP Writer

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Comdr. John S. McCain Jr., said yesterday he was misquoted in an Associated Press dispatch reporting submarine-launched guided missiles could carry an atomic bomb.

The dispatch dealt with a navy announcement of plans to launch the missiles from two submarines off Hawaii Nov. 7.

The reporter understood McCain to say the missiles could carry the bomb, McCain denied this.

"The fact is," he added, "I don't know anything about the atom bomb. In my naval experience, I've never had anything to do with atomic experiments."

McCain is in charge of submarine guided missile development.
